HOUSE IN UPROAR

BLOWS EXCHANGED ALMOST BETWEEN MEMBERS.

MAHON CALLS GAINES LIAR

TENNESSEEAN JUMPS TO HIS FEET, READY TO FIGHT.

FRIENDS OF BOTH INTERFERE

Trouble Caused by Accusation by Gaines That Pennsylvania Representative Was Absent 95 per Cent of Time During Fifty-third Congress

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Late this afternoon Mr. Gaines of Tennessee and Mr. Mahon of Pennsylvania were only prevented from meeting in a personal encounter by the intervention of members on the floor of the house. Mr. Gaines was making a speech on his bill to dock members for absence from the house, and was being twitted by both sides of the chamber to his evident embarrassment. During his speech he charged Mr. Mahon with being absent from the house 95 per cent of the time. Previous to this sweeping assertion Mr. Gaines had read excerpts from the record in relation to the withholding of pay in the Fifty-third congress and the part Mr. Mahon had played at that time.

Mr. Mahon remained silent throughout Mr. Gaines' speech, with the exception of interjecting a remark or two at the beginning. When Mr. Gaines had concluded Mr. Mahon rose. He explained how in the Fifty-third and Fifty-fifth congresses he had had $7,600 due him and that Speaker Crisp had given him an order on the sergeant-at-arms for the amount which was paid. Then coming to the crux of Mr. Gaines' charge, Mr. Mahon thundered:

Mixup Is Threatened.

"Any man who charges me with being away from the house 95 per cent of the time tells an untruth."

Mr. Gaines started down the aisle from his seat. "No man can tell me I lie," he exclaimed.

Mr. Mann, who was in the chair, ordered both men to their seats. Mr. Mahon obeyed the command, while Mr. Gaines stood two seats away from the center of the chamber, shaking both fists and head at the Pennsylvania man.

When order had been restored, Mr. Mahon again rose. Having been cautioned by the chair that it was against the rules to address a member in the second person he measured his words, saying he would speak in the fourth person. He then said:

"The charge of the gentleman from Tennessee that I am away from the house 95 per cent of my time is a deliberate lie."

With a rush Mr. Gaines reached the center of the chamber making directly toward the gentleman from Pennsylvania, insisting as he went that he would not take all this from a gentleman without personal chastisement.

House in Uproar.

The house was in an uproar in the aisles, on the chair adding to the noise of the confusion by pounding the desk with his gavel. His efforts to restore order caused the head of the gavel to fly off and it bounded into the body of the house, causing a rush of the members.

The rush of Mr. Gaines from his adversary brought a dozen members before the speaker's desk. Messrs. Williams of Kentucky, Taylor of Alabama, Bell of Georgia, Wadsworth of Mississippi and Stafford of Wisconsin grabbed Gaines who, struggling, was forced back to his seat.

Mr. Mann then spoke a few words to the point which never came. With Mr. Gaines back in his seat the Pennsylvania man made his explanation as to how he became connected with the invoking of an old statute compelling members to forfeit pay for the time absent from the house. He said the charge that he was away from the house 95 per cent of the time was a lie on its face, and that he was there 95 per cent of the time as every member who cared to inquire could see for himself.

Mr. Lacey then moved for the recalling of the statute relating to docking members' pay, and he followed Mr. Gaines in an explanation of the reason for the statute. Dearmond of Missouri then moved that the minority views of the judiciary committee be printed.

While this motion was in progress Messrs. Gaines and Mahon were engaged in an effort to bring together in collision, in which the former's fists, and at the conclusion Mr. Mahon's exclamations.

Mr. Mahon then rose to a question of personal privilege. He stated that he had been called to account by the Knights of Columbus of United States, which was an outrage. He said he was not in the house but he desired to say that his information was incorrect. He had no desire to offer to meet any man from Tennessee. He (Mr. Gaines) had insulted him and he had wanted him to meet him. He (Mr. Mahon) had been informed he (Mr. Gaines) had immediately made a statement showing deep feeling, and that the gentleman from Pennsylvania had attempted to have him (Mr. Gaines) believe that he had been goaded beyond endurance. He regretted extremely the turn affairs had taken.

Mr. Mahon rushed across the chamber, the two men clasped hands and had a friendly talk.

Adjourned until to-morrow.

Army Canteen Discussed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The army canteen was up for a long under discussion in the house of representatives. While the army appropriation bill was up, Representative Morrell of Pennsylvania intimated that he would like to attach a paragraph doing away with the anticanteen law in line with a bill he had introduced in the first session of the Fifty-fifth congress.

Mr. Hull of Iowa, in charge of the bill, stated that the paragraph would be new legislation and that a point of order would therefore be against it. He stated, however, that the testimony of army officers was almost uniformly to the effect that the canteen was a good temperance measure and that its abolition had resulted in desertions and a greater degree of drunkenness. On the other hand he said he was receiving all the way from ten to one hundred letters a day, whose authors were distributed all over the country, contending that the canteen should be a crime against society and protesting against its re-enactment.

Between these two widely separated views it was his opinion congress could do no better than go back as near as possible, providing the posts with post exchanges and furnishing hot coffee.

This gave Mr. Morrell an opportunity to tell the house some things about the discriminations practiced between officers and men regarding post exchanges.

If he said, the increase of drunkenness continues in the army at the present rate it may become a very serious matter, in preventing men from enlisting in the army.

He said the anticanteen law was doing the reverse of what had been anticipated.

SPRINGS MEN BARRED

W. F. OF M. SAYS THEY CAN'T COME TO NEVADA.

Long List of Ineligibles Includes Many Prominent Mine Owners of This City

That the Western Federation of Miners is continuing its aggressive fight in the Nevada gold fields against the members and sympathizers of the Cripple Creek District Mine Owners and Operators association is shown by the Miners Magazine of the issue of January 3, which publishes a additional list of names of men who are declared to be ineligible to residence in the Nevada camps controlled by the federation.

In the issue of January 3, the Miners' Magazine says that the additional list was received in a letter from a member of the Goldfield Miners union which is as follows:

"I am furnishing you a list of names that should be added to those already published who took an active part in the Cripple Creek troubles, who were in sympathy with the deportation of union miners, and were active in the lawless work of a Mine Owners association." The writer further says: "The people of Nevada should be warned against such men as they are disturbers wherever they go and a menace to any community in which they live."

The list of names furnished is as follows:

Sherwood Aldrich, chairman executive committee Elkton company; Wm. Bainbridge, superintendent the El Paso mine; S. S. Barnard, president El Paso company; George Barnard, connected with the Elkton mine; A. L. Bollerton, cashier Bank of Victor; Jame Cunningham, real estate; C. C. WASHOUTS AND LANDSLIDES

Train Service on Southern Pacific in California at Standstill.—Other Roads Affected.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—The train service on the Southern Pacific between here and Los Angeles is at a complete standstill as a result of washouts and landslides in the lines of that road. The last Los Angeles train to get through left here Monday morning. Tuesday morning's train got as far as Gilroy, a little south of San Jose, when the tracks in the hills have been undermined by rains or things at either end of the line have fallen down. Between Salinas and Santa Barbara the main traffic is possible. It is believed that service can be resumed before the end of the week.

The sun shone brightly in southern California today for the first time in a fortnight. The most constant rain and storm. The floods which have caused the loss of a dozen lives at Lompoc, Santa Barbara county, one in Orange county and another in Los Angeles and entailed immense property damage are subsiding. The railroad situation in Los Angeles today is the worst in recent years.

The Southern Pacific is the worst affected. Only its eastern line is operating.

For some days it has been cleared this morning and delayed westbound trains have proceeded nearly to San Bernardino where they are delayed again by dangerous tracks. Trains due to depart for the east this morning were annulled.

DECLINES OFFICE

P. B. STEWART DECIDES TO REMAIN HERE.

REFUSES FEDERAL POSITION

WILL NOT BE COMMISSIONER OF GENERAL LAND OFFICE.

WIRES FRIEND OF DECISION

Extensive Private Interests in Colorado Require His Attention—Has Been Offered Many Posts of Honor by President Roosevelt

Philip B. Stewart yesterday declined the position of commissioner of the general land office recently tendered to him by President Roosevelt. The pressure of private business, together with the fact that all the personal interests of Mr. Stewart are closely identified with Colorado Springs, is said on good authority to be the cause of his refusal to accept the office.

A close friend of Mr. Stewart yesterday received a letter from him announcing his decision. The position of commissioner of the general land office is one of the most important in the gift of the chief executive. It was Roosevelt's hunt on the occasion of the latter's hunting trip in Colorado and also when Roosevelt [illegible] president visited this state.

PHILIP B. STEWART

Mr. Stewart also received a wire from his wife urging him to accept the position. Mr. Stewart has also received word from his husband's decision to remain in Colorado Springs and gives no details as to his reasons therefor beyond the fact that his large private interests require his undivided attention.

Mr. Stewart, in addition to being heavily interested in many local and state ventures, recently became associated with eastern capitalists in a Colorado mining proposition and felt that it would not be fair to withdraw from the move the latter. This company, it is said, would be greatly embarrassed by his retirement from the position of land commissioner.

He has been offered many posts of honor during the last few years by President Roosevelt, of whom he is a close friend. He has steadfastly declined all public office. His name was prominently mentioned in connection with the United States senatorship from Colorado a few years ago although he declined to become a candidate. Mr. Stewart was nominated for a senator on the Republican ticket last fall but withdrew shortly afterward, the vacancy being filled by the nomination of Chancellor Henry A. Buchtel, the present governor of the state.

Despite his repeated refusal of government honors at the hands of President Roosevelt, Mr. Stewart has always ranked high in the counsel and esteem of the chief executive.

MINERS MAY STRIKE

BIG MASS MEETING TO BE HELD SUNDAY.

Resolution Adopted by Union Last Night Indicates That Strike Is Anticipated

The union coal miners in El Paso county held meetings last night at Pike View and Papeton to receive a reply from the coal mine operators in response to their demand for an increase in wages and a shorter work day. Only the restraining influence of the district officers of the United Mine Workers of America kept the miners at Papeton from declaring for a strike last night. No report was received of the action taken by the meeting at Pike View.

A mass meeting of the two locals will be held at Papeton Sunday afternoon and it is almost a certainty that unless a satisfactory reply is received from the operators all of the coal miners in El Paso county, numbering about [illegible], will declare to go on strike.

Word was telegraphed to President John Mitchell of the national organization, of the conditions prevailing here and the local organization is now awaiting his reply.

Strong Resolutions.

The meeting at Papeton passed the following resolutions in reply to an interview that was printed in The Gazette yesterday morning:

WALKER EXPLAINS POSITION

Says Circumstances Did Not Justify The Action and Holds Kinney to Blame

Miss Lelah M. Parker, 1[illegible] North Weber street, was yesterday morning placed temporarily in charge of the classes at the High school formerly conducted by Professor Francis E. Walker who was discharged by the board of education Wednesday night. Mr. Walker was formally notified by the board of his dismissal yesterday morning and immediately gave up his work. According to the notification of discharge he will receive his salary up to January 24.

Superintendent [illegible] denied that he had advised Mr. Walker not to explain to the board of education the reasons for his failure to comply with their wishes in leading the singing exercises on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings.

"On the contrary, he said I had advised Mr. Walker to go before the board and explain his position. I repeated this several times. It was understood that his school work was to be reduced so as not to impose any hardships upon him when he had charge of the singing exercises.

Two petitions were started among the members of the student body yesterday asking the board to reconsider its action in dismissing Mr. Walker.

Walker Talks

In reply to the statement made by President W. P. Kinney of the board yesterday that "a combination was entered into two years ago by Mr. Walker and other members of the High school faculty to coerce the board into paying higher salaries than the means at the disposal of the board warranted, Mr. Walker last night said:

"In order that the public may know the truth concerning my dismissal from the High school faculty and that I may not be placed in a false light as a sensation monger and a formulator of terrible threats, I wish to state what I consider the essentials of the case.

"In the first place I intend to make no sensational disclosures or charges against Mr. Kinney or the board that will make the public sit up and take notice. Instead, I shall merely state certain facts for the sole purpose of protecting myself and my conduct from the unjust imputations of the board in general and Mr. Kinney in particular. I forever repudiate Mr. Kinney's assertion that I made certain 'threats' with the intention of intimidating the board into raising my salary. I did tell Mr. Kinney and with considerable anger, as I afterwards acknowledged to the board, that if my salary were not raised I would let the public know certain things. Mr. Kinney immediately construed this into a 'threat' and proceeded precipitately from the office of the board of education in a fit of anger so violent that he could not even be stopped by Principal Richards who rushed after him with the purpose of persuading him to return. Mr. Kinney then proceeded to do something unparalleled in the history of boards of education while yet in his fit of anger, and without consulting the other members of the board, he prepared and sent to me a letter demanding that I tender my resignation to him by 7:30 o'clock that evening. This precipitate action of Mr. Kinney was sustained by the board that evening, and so the cause of my dismissal resolves itself into the anger of Mr. Kinney. Verily, he let the sun go down on his wrath. Had he slept on the question, he might have been capable the next morning or at least several mornings later—of coming to a decision worthy of a man and of a body that the public expects to be sober and dignified.

Says Charges Are Weak.

"The charges upon which I was peremptorily ousted are as weak as Mr. Kinney's anger was violent. I did use the time I signed me. On the contrary, I did the singing. I was requested to do so by Principal Richards. He realized the humiliation in which he had placed me. The other charges of insubordination and accusations of improper conduct on the part of me by the board were made as the result of my statement that the faculty of the High school had been too often taken to task by a certain member of the board rather than by the proper authorities, the superintendent and principal. This charge I shall answer at length in a future article in which I shall cite specific instances of this interference and the evil effects which have arisen therefrom.

"In justice to the other members of the faculty I shall in the near future discuss the unjust and absurd statement of Mr. Kinney that some two years ago Mr. Walker and other members of the High school faculty entered into a combination to coerce the board into paying them higher salaries than the means at the disposal of the board warranted."

RACE WAR IN CHICAGO SCHOOL

Number of Pupils Injured Before Police Stop Riot—Children Fight With Stones and Clubs

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Race clashing which has caused the pupils of the Lagrange school to miss more than a week culminated in an open fight today between the negro and white children. A number of the pupils were injured. Between two and three hundred children took part in the riot. The belligerents fought in lines and clubs, some of the girls using hat pins. Police stopped the affair before anyone was dangerously hurt.

DENVER'S NEW AUDITORIUM

Ground Broken by Governor Buchtel, Mayor Speer and A. J. Spengel

DENVER, Jan. 10.—Ground was broken today for the auditorium to be built on the ten or fourteen story fireproof building on the corner of Champa and Curtis. There was no formality about the proceeding. Before a cheering crowd of more than a thousand of Denver's prominent men, Governor Buchtel, Mayor Speer and A. J. Spengel, president of the chamber of commerce, seized shovels and began tossing the first shovels of earth from the site.

DEATH—William [illegible], aged 45 years, died at his home, 916 South Nevada avenue, last night. He was a member of the Carpenters' union and of the Woodmen of the World. He is survived by a widow and two children. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

MARRIAGE LICENSE—Samuel T. [illegible] and Mrs. Hattie Johnson both of this city, yesterday secured marriage licenses in the county clerk's office. The couple were divorced in Colorado Springs about three years ago. Other marriage licenses granted were those to Jacob Dolf and Ella Jean Young both of Denver and Edward C. Mentz and Mrs. Bessie Vogel, both of Colorado Springs. Mrs. Vogel was divorced in this city six months ago. Daly and Miss Young were later married by Justice O. P. Dunnington.

LOW GRADE MILL—A smelter to cost $250,000 will shortly be erected at Victor by the Stratton's Independence company according to advices received in this city. The plant will treat the low grade ore of the mine in addition to handling the dump rock which approximates 200,000 tons. The mill, which will be operated by electricity, will treat at a profit it is said, ore running as low as $4 a ton.

MASONS TO MEET—All the Masons of the city are invited to attend a meeting to be held this evening at the close of a stated communication of El Paso lodge, No. 11, A. F. & A. M. for the purpose of discussing plans for securing a new lodge room.

KILLS HIS COUSIN'S WIFE

Bean Feared Woman Who Eloped With Him, Would Return Home.

DENVER, Jan. 10.—Death due to strangulation was the finding reported to the coroner today by Health Commissioner W. H. Shupla and the other physicians who made a post mortem examination of the remains of Lilla M. Bean who was found dead in a rooming house here on the day alongside Elmer J. Bean who had committed suicide by cutting his throat after having choked his companion to death. Evidence is accumulating which points to the conclusion that the man killed his cousin's wife who eloped with him to prevent her returning to her husband.

FIFTEEN OR MORE ARE DEAD

Exact Number of Fatalities in Pittsburg Horror Has Not Yet Been Ascertained.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 10.—Fifteen or more men were completely incinerated in six feet of molten metal in last night's explosion at the Jones and Laughlin Steel company's furnaces according to investigation made today. Tons of the fiery substance were showered over 40 workmen. Of these between 15 and 20 cannot be found, twelve dead bodies [illegible] and [illegible] are in hospitals frightfully burned.

It is believed that not a trace of the men engulfed in the hot metal will be found.

Of the bodies recovered several are minus arms, legs and head while others are burned and twisted beyond recognition. A number of the injured have their eyes burned out and others were so badly injured that amputation of arms and limbs was necessary.

Dennis Cor, one of the injured, says that one man became crazed by his injuries and before he could be prevented had jumped into a pool of molten metal and was burned to death.

[illegible] were working for a lost workman searching for bodies of the missing men found the leg of a man imbedded in a piece of the metal which they were breaking up.

W. E. Jones, president of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Co., Ltd., issued the following statement tonight: "We have been unable to determine what caused the explosion. A rigid investigation has been instituted. The unfortunate affair is a great mystery."

DENVER, Jan. 10.—Frank [illegible] Knabel, assistant to United States District Attorney Earl M. Cranston received notice from Washington today that he had been appointed an assistant to Attorney General Charles Bonaparte. His headquarters will be in Denver. Mr. Knabel is a native of New York, 34 years old.

CHICAGO INVESTIGATION ENDS

Commission Adjourns to Meet at Seattle, January 21, When Harriman Case Will Be Resumed.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—The investigation by the interstate commerce commission into the traffic alliances and other business deals of the railroads controlled by E. H. Harriman was completed today so far as the witnesses are concerned, and the commission adjourned to meet in Seattle January 21 when the case will be resumed.

James H. Hyland, third vice president of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway, Julius Kruttschnitt, director in charge of maintenance and transportation of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific, and others testified today. That the consolidation of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific had eliminated competition to a certain extent was shown by the testimony given by Mr. Hyland and Mr. Kruttschnitt, admitted that purchase of rolling stock for both systems was practically under his control.

Mr. McCormick was questioned regarding the advertising department of the system but declared each road had its own bureau of publicity.

After the commission adjourned this afternoon it was said that after the commissioners had concluded their investigation in the west the hearing would be resumed in New York. At that time Mr. Harriman, Mr. Rockefeller, standard oil officials and others, including H. H. Rogers, H. C. Frick and James Stillman would be called before the commission.

WESTERN ROADS ON THE LIST

Commission Will Investigate Santa Fe and Others

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 10.—[illegible] announced here today that when the interstate commerce commission [illegible] it will [illegible] complaints against the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, the Missouri Pacific and other western roads regarding the giving of rebates and unjust discriminations, death certain shippers and will receive testimony in cases growing out of these complaints.

PREPARING FOR THEIR TRIAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—An order for a special panel in the case of Harry K. Thaw charged with the murder of Stanford White was signed by Justice Fitzgerald in the supreme court today. The order calls for a special panel of 250 talesmen for a special jury to appear in court on Monday, January 21. This action on the part of Justice Fitzgerald appears to dispose of rumors that difference of opinion between the justice and the district attorney might result in a postponement of the beginning of the Thaw trial.

Fitzgerald's order this morning was issued only a few hours before the order was signed with the justice refused an application made for such an order by the district attorney. Mr. Jerome was told at that time that a proceeding to bring in the panel had been begun by Mr. Garvan of the district attorney's staff, and that should be completed before any further action was taken. The trouble was adjusted later, however, and the necessary signature was affixed to the order.

BOWLERS ARRANGE MATCHES

Allen and Davies to Play Rowan and Stanley—Series of Weekly Games Scheduled

Colorado Springs bowlers met at the Brunswick bowling alleys last night and perfected arrangements for a match to decide the bowling championship of Colorado Springs and also arranged for a series of weekly games to continue for five weeks. Next Monday evening, at 8 o'clock, on the Brunswick alleys Allen and Davies will play Rowan and Stanley for the city championship. The match will be for three games, total number of pins.

A series of three contested matches has been arranged for five consecutive weeks, the games being called each Tuesday evening, beginning January 22 at 7:30 [illegible]. Prizes will be offered for the winning team and the maker of the best individual score. The matches will be played on the Brunswick alleys. The three teams and their captains are as follows: J. Rowan, Brunswick; C. Thomas, Gazette; T. Stanley, Telegraph. These games will be held for the purpose of selecting the teams which will take part in the bowling tournament in Denver in March.

In speaking of the [illegible] bowling season in Colorado Springs George F. Bradley, well known bowler of this city, last night said:

"The outlook for a good bowling season was never brighter. I believe that we will send at least two teams to Denver to the tournament. A number of the old time players are coming out and new men are putting in their appearance."

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED

Preparations for the tenth annual exhibition of the Pikes Peak Poultry association which will be held at 118 North Tejon street next week, beginning Monday and continuing to Saturday, are almost completed. Entries are coming in rapidly and this year show promises to be one of the finest exhibitions given by the association. Judge Heimbach of Illinois has been selected to judge the poultry and pet stock. The premium list is unusually large and a number of prizes have been contributed by the business firms of Colorado Springs.

OPERA HOUSE ATTRACTIONS

What the Press Agents Say

"RED FEATHER" AT THE OPERA HOUSE TONIGHT

In Reginald DeKoven and Charles Klein's comic opera, "Red Feather," which comes to the Opera house this evening the score is pleasingly varied, some of the numbers being of the ballad order, some of them humorous and some of them of superior musical worth, coming very near to the grand opera standard; but the keynote of the whole is martial, the resultant effect being stirring to the last degree. In all, there are 22 individual numbers, embracing solos, duets, trios, madrigals, marcias and choruses. Of these the best known are: "The Little Milliner," "Lessons in Verse," "The Song of the Guards," "To Call Thee Mine," "The Merry Cavalier," "The Rose and the Breeze," "Garden of Dreams," "The Humorous Ghost," and "In Vino Veritas." Miss Cheridah Simpson, the prima donna, has been surrounded by a thoroughly adequate supportian company of 70 people.

Throughout the two acts of the "Red Feather" there runs a strong vein of comedy which comes as a relief after the plethora of absolute nonsense that has been served to the theater-goers of the country under the guise of amusing entertainment. The libretto of "Red Feather" was written by Charles Klein. And when the fact that he also wrote "The Muse Magler" and "The Lion and the Mouse" is taken into consideration, students of the stage will quickly determine that he would not, if his dropping to such depth in writing could be imagined, resort to the slap-stick methods of comedy to draw laughter from an audience. Rather he has confined himself to bright and witty lines and carefully considered comic situations to provoke outbreaks of mirth.

FLORENCE ROBERTS COMING

At the Opera house, on next Thursday evening, the popular actress, Miss Florence Roberts, will appear in a very human and intense social tragedy called "The Strength of the Weak." It is the play that she took to New York last spring when she shied her castor into the dramatic ring of the metropolis. The fact that she remained there with it at the Liberty theater for nine months, and is to return shortly for a second run in the piece, speaks well for it as a vehicle of entertainment, and her well-known ability needs no comment at this writing. Suffice she is backed by the original company, and the production provided for her appearance in New York city.

"DOROTHY VERNON OF HADDON HALL"

Judging from newspaper reports, Miss Vernon of Haddon Hall is destined to be one of the biggest successes of the present theatrical season. And when Miss Alberta Gallatin appears as Charles Major's notable heroine at the Opera house tomorrow evening, she will probably be greeted by many persons who have read the book.

Those who visit the production will doubtless find proof in Miss Gallatin's play, aided by recollection of Mr. Major's "When Knighthood Was in Flower," that no contemporary novelist has a happier knack than this Hoosier author of humanizing historic personages. This is true, even though the subjects of his pen have long been myths to the modern mind from their long residence on the pianables of fame. In reviving the real life romance of "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," Mr. Major brings back the brilliant Elizabethan era, the most picturesque and dramatic of English history. The spirit of the days of Elizabeth of England, and Mary Queen of Scots, whose fatal warfare against her in the strong, terse fashion of a writer who so rarely fails, lend themselves readily to the skill of such a dramatist as Paul Kester.

CHERIDAH SIMPSON.
"Red Feather," at the Opera House This Evening.

THE PIKE'S PEAK POULTRY ASSOCIATION

This association will hold its annual exhibition in a room in the DeGraff building, beginning at 9 a. m. Tuesday morning, January 15, and continuing until January 19. The exhibition promises to be one of the very best exhibitions of fancy poultry and pet stock ever held in this state. Their exhibition last year gained them the reputation of having the finest birds ever shown in any of the cities in this state. So many new fanciers have taken up the fancy side of the poultry business that this year promises to be very much better than last.

It may not be generally known that heretofore it has been almost impossible to hatch chicks in this state on account of the fact that the air is so dry that the eggs give off their moisture to the air, instead of taking moisture from the air, which is natural that they should, so that by the time they go through the process incubation and the little chicks are matured enough to break the shell, they find it so hard that they could not get out even if their little bills were made of steel, so some of the members of the association began experimenting to learn how, if possible, to overcome this difficulty, and they found that by using an abundance of moisture in the incubators and keeping the eggs moist from the time they were laid until they were hatched, that the eggs would hatch in this country almost as well as in the low altitudes. The result has been a great increase in poultry this year. Some members of the association have been using a good deal of money for fancy poultry, feeling that since the difficulty of hatching has been overcome they could raise just as fine poultry here as could be raised in the east. The result is that almost all fancy pieces of poultry have been breeding from the best stock that has taken prizes in the larger and best shows in Boston and New York. Very few persons realize what it means to this place that it is possible now to raise more poultry and eggs and to have an abundance of perfectly fresh eggs instead of decomposed ones having eggs shipped into the city. There are several men in and near the city who have 100 or more hens laying now, a thing unheard of before in the history of Colorado Springs. A great many people have come here for their health and gone into the poultry business, only to be obliged to discontinue it on account of the fact that they could not hatch, and raise the chickens. This difficulty has been overcome, and it is well to hope that from now on, for years to come, there will be no more difficulty in hatching chicks, and that there will be no more difficulty in raising them, and that there will be no more difficulty in selling them, and that there will be no more difficulty in selling them at good prices, and it will be very interesting to watch this process as well as to see the very best fowls that can be found anywhere.

Personal Mention

Charles E. Johnson, district passenger agent of the Nickel Plate road, spent yesterday in Colorado Springs on a business trip.

Charles L. Zobrist, who has been seriously ill, is much improved and it is expected he will be able to be up and about in a few days.

Mrs. Gilbert McClurg has gone to Chicago, Ill., to resume the lecture tour that she and Mr. McClurg are making in the east.

W. A. Jackson and his aunt, Mrs. Mae McMillan, left yesterday for Oregon for the benefit of the health of Mrs. McMillan. Mr. Jackson intends to return in three weeks.

Frank Ward, chauffeur for J. D. Hawkins, accompanied by his wife, went to Denver Thursday morning on a few days' pleasure trip. They expect to return tomorrow night.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Aldrich, and Miss Kaupf, of Colorado Springs, are spending the winter at the hotel Maryland, Pasadena, Cal. Miss Stella McNeil White and C. H. White are also registered at the Maryland.

Mrs. Florence E. Brown left last night for her ranch near Reudi, Colo., after a visit with Dr. and Mrs. W. Carey Allen and other friends in this city. Miss Mabel Brown will remain in Colorado Springs for a week longer and on her return home will be accompanied by Miss May Allen, who will be her guest for a month or two.

B. H. HOPKINS GOING ABROAD

Will Make European Tour Lasting One Year.

Berne H. Hopkins, for the last two years secretary to President Jesse Walters of the Cripple Creek railroads, has resigned his position and will leave tomorrow morning for Europe, where he expects to remain for a year. Mr. Hopkins will spend most of his time while abroad in travel, visiting places where he was unable to go during a former European tour made about three years ago. While abroad he will pay a visit to Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Twiley and Mrs. Rose Marie Durkee of this city, who are spending the winter at Madrigar, Spain.

I used one bottle of White's Cream Vermifuge and in a few days baby was laughing, happy and well." Sold by the Hoffey-Anderson Drug Co.

POLYTECHNIC SOCIETY

Prof. George J. Lyon Will Address Meeting Tomorrow Night.

Taking as his subject, "The Water Supply of New York City," George J. Lyon, professor of civil engineering at Colorado college, will address the Pike's Peak Polytechnic society at its meeting in Cogswell library tomorrow night. Professor Lyon is a graduate of the Columbia School of Mines, and, as a practicing engineer, has been connected with the Union Pacific and the New York Central railways and the American Bridge company.

Professor Lyon will give a history of the New York City water system and a description of its reservoirs, and will also speak of the possibility of a new source for the increase of the water supply in the Catskill, Adirondacks, and Walkill regions. The plans for these new supplies, which are now being considered, involve the construction of over 100 miles of aqueducts and the expenditure of $150,000,000.

The lecture will be illustrated by lantern slides.

FRIDAY JANUARY 11, 1907.

REPUDIATE THE DEAL.

MOST of the Republican members of the Legislature attempt to excuse their acquiescence in the sale of the Senatorship to Simon Guggenheim by declaring that the people knew during the campaign that he was to be a candidate, and that their election of a Republican Legislature proves that he is their choice for the place.

Of course this is a mere subterfuge. The people elected a Republican Legislature principally because they wanted to retire Patterson. It is true that they were well aware of the Guggenheim candidacy, but they most emphatically were not aware that the sale had been all but consummated and that nothing remained to delay the delivery of the goods but the election of a Legislative majority that would obey the orders of the bosses who made the sale. The Guggenheim candidacy was carefully kept in the background throughout the campaign, and other men were talked of particularly Joel F. Vaile of Denver. The plain intention of the Guggenheim managers was to give the people the impression that there was an open field in the Senatorial contest, and it was not until after the November election that the discussion of Vaile and others was utterly silenced and the hitherto silent organs of the Smelter Trust candidate found voices to urge the claims of their generous patron.

But there are a few members of the majority in the Legislature who frankly admit that Guggenheim is not the people's choice that he is unfit for the place and that his methods are reprehensible. Their only excuse for joining in the caucus which indorsed him is their own helplessness. They are afraid to stand in insurrection because they know the chance of success is against them, and then after defeat would come punishment at the hands of the party bosses.

But suppose some leader of courage and ability should arise—what then? He would only need a following of twenty-one. Reports indicate that the situation, for in both branches of the Legislature there are seventy Republicans and thirty Democrats, and it is practically certain that the latter would unite with the Republican independents to secure the election of some Republican as Senator who possesses the character and qualifications which Guggenheim so conspicuously lacks. Partisanship is all right in its place, but just now the issue before the Legislature is not one of partisan politics but of common decency and honesty.

It is time for the Republican members of the Colorado Legislature to show whether or not Simon Guggenheim acquired title to them when the organization boss in the Jackson Building sold them to him. The caucus by which an effort was made to bind them is of no effect because it was irregularly and improperly called, being held contrary to established custom prior to the convening of the Legislature. No obligation rests upon the members which they could not repudiate with perfect propriety.

TRYING TO HANDLE HARRIMAN.

THE investigation of the Union Pacific and its allied railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission has already disclosed a number of interesting facts, most of which, however, were already suspected. It has been shown that Mr. Harriman—the colossus of Roads, as a recent writer calls him—is not merely the nominal head of some half-dozen of the largest transportation lines in the country, but the real fountain head of authority. The directorate of the Union Pacific has delegated its authority to the executive committee, which in turn has given the power thus received to Mr. Harriman as its chairman. The company holds large blocks of the stock of other railroads, and has traffic arrangements with other lines, especially the San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake road by which it controls the rates.

It will be interesting to watch the progress of this investigation and its final results. The country is devoting more attention to Mr. Harriman just now than to any other railroad man because he is showing himself to be the master of them all. He is shrewd, calculating, and not troubled by an over-active conscience, so the Commission is not likely to learn any secrets that will shatter sentimental ideas of him—there are none to shatter. He is more likely to be shown up as a cold blooded buccaneer of business who pursues his course straight to the goal regardless of who or what may stand between.

But what will be the outcome of it all? Some two or three years ago the Government succeeded, after long and costly litigation, in dissolving the Northern Securities Company, thus cutting the official tie between the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads. The two lines were held to be parallel and competing, and therefore their union under one management was in restraint of competition and a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. This gave around widespread discussion and the decision of the Federal Supreme Court in regard to it was the principal topic for weeks.

But what did it all amount to? Nothing. The Northern Securities Company passed into the limbo of oblivion, but there has been no more competition between the two railroads which composed it than there was before the Supreme Court passed on the case. Nor could it be supposed that there would be. The stock of both lines is largely held by the same people, and there is no way to make them compete with each other if they do not want to, any more than there is to compel a man who owns two stores to set them to fighting each other.

There are some evils that can not be reached by law, and this appears to be one of them. The Government may be able to dissolve formal agreements, or to set aside consolidations, but the same object is usually attained just as effectively by indirect methods. Most people will agree that it is not a good thing for the country for one man to control so many systems of railroad embracing such an extensive mileage, as Mr. Harriman controls in the Union Pacific, the Southern Pacific, the Illinois Central, etc., etc., but it is an extremely knotty question whether there is any way to loosen the grip he has already secured.

The large number of communications printed in the Open Parliament column of The Gazette is the best evidence of the popularity of this department of the paper. We wish it to be as it is, the people's forum, in which every reader has the privilege of airing his or her opinions on any subject of interest, within such limits as are naturally prescribed by good sense and propriety. As a rule we prefer that writers attach their names to publication, because a signed letter always carries more weight than one unsigned, but whether this is done or not, we must adhere to the rule that all letters sent to us for publication must be accompanied by the name of the writer, simply as an evidence of good faith. Neither can we publish any communications in which reflections are made on the character or standing of any person unless the signature of the writer is attached for publication.

Count Witte says Japan is too poor to fight. This news will be received with peculiar regret in California, where the people are simply spoiling for a chance to wipe the Mikado's army off the map.

The late Brigham H. Roberts had Sam been a prominent citizen he would have been in Salt Lake City.

PROOF OF INSANITY.

From the Washington Star.

An insane man in New York fired on a policeman because he desired company heaven ward. His ideas as to the future of the average New York policeman are as bad as his conduct.

THE LONDON SUNDAY.

From the Bystander.

There seems to be an obsolete lack of imagination in those who rail at the London Sunday. We have tried this day in a good many other cities of the world and we own we like it best at home. For those who have no friends and no interests all towns are dull. Those who want bright life and music in the streets and parks ask too much of our climate. Those who want all places of entertainment open are merely bores afraid of themselves. For one day in the week the delights of one's own circle, one's own temperament, one's own world—egotism stimulated by a friend or so—that is very delightful.

DANGER IN OVERHEATED ROOMS

From the Philadelphia Press.

The season of the year is upon us when tuberculosis gets in its work with most deadly effect. The cold raw days of winter are particularly conducive to the spread of this disease not because they are cold and raw but because people must then shut themselves up in superheated rooms without proper ventilation. It has been definitely proven beyond the slightest doubt that no single cause is so conducive to the spread of tuberculosis as overheated offices and overheated and ill-ventilated living and sleeping rooms. A baked atmosphere causes loss of vitality, weakens the resisting power to disease and brings all the physical forces to a condition where the slightest exposure to the chill outside air invites an attack of disease upon throat and lungs.

PENALTIES OF PROSPERITY.

From the Indianapolis News.

After all is said it must be conceded that the apparent disregard for human life in the United States is largely a tribute to progress and to the industries that constitute prosperity. Even fatal railroad accidents, the largest item in the list, can not be wholly eliminated though they can and ought to be greatly reduced in number. But railroad accidents are only one item in the list of annual fatalities. There are fatal accidents in mining, building, manufacturing and agriculture. They all claim their victims as a sort of tribute to progress though a very costly one. Carefully compiled statistics show that in the five great industries of railroading, mining, building, manufacturing and agriculture no less than 336,165 persons are annually killed or injured in the United States. This is at the rate of over one a minute and it includes only a few of the largest industries.

SOLVING THE PROBLEM

From the Washington Star.

Skeptics who have derided the possibility of practicable human flight must admit that material progress has been made during the past few years and especially during the past few months. As long as the problem was studied in the realm of slightly controllable levitation by means of gas bags equipped with motors, there seemed little prospect of a solution being attained. It has been repeatedly demonstrated that balloons can, under favorable circumstances, be directed through the air along generally prescribed routes but the conditions were exceptional which permitted extended flights or striking dirigibility. As long as the machine is subject to the vagaries of the wind there can be no practicable human flight.

In France Santos Dumont has devised a combination of automobile and aeroplane with which he has taken short flights. There is more promise in his small machine than in the most highly developed of his dirigible balloons. In this country Dr. Julian P. Thomas, who has been for many years devoted himself chiefly to non-dirigible balloons, has developed a "wind wagon" which is practically a tricycle of which the motive power is a large propeller. He has demonstrated that this is capable of high speed. Thus far he has not adopted aeroplanes but promises to combine them immediately in that direction.

Thus the race is now on between France and the United States in the evolution of the wind motor car with air planes which will give flotation. If the advance in this direction is as rapid as it has been in the past in the development of the dirigible balloon, flying cars should in a few years possibly a few months be in evidence. Had the experimenters in this field of aerostation devoted themselves earlier to the aeroplane instead of persisting in their experiments with the gas bag, it is possible that today the genuine airship, carrying its operator from point to point in safety in all reasonable variations of the weather, would have been in evidence.

But it is too much to expect now that practical advances are being made with the motor aeroplane that the commercial "air ship" of our dreams will be in evidence in the near future. It will be one thing to produce an engine capable of carrying the operator and possibly one passenger to a given destination in average weather conditions and quite another thing to develop the large air car capable of transporting numbers. For a long time probably, the personally directed aeroplane must remain more or less of a toy.

SENATOR SIMON?

From the Telluride Journal.

Is Colorado citizenship going to sit down quietly and acquiesce without murmur, word or protest, in the sale of the United States senatorship, to a party who has never given utterance or intimation as to his probable attitude on matters of vital importance to the state or as to the manner in which he is likely to assume in aiding the president in the accomplishment of necessary reforms—a man whose chief claim to and main qualification for this high honor is his great wealth?

CAN'T SNEER AT DELAWARE NOW

From the Laramie County Democrat.

Simon Guggenheim, who has bought and paid for the senatorial toga, will assume his seat in the United States Senate March 4, 1907. We used to sneer at Delaware when Gen. Addicks was doing the same thing. Even the couple of this city had a spell about it, yet we have sunk just as low in the estimation of the people of other states. Even a Republican president, who is opposed to such dickering, has no influence in this state.

A NICE PROSPECT

From the Grand Junction Sentinel.

John Vivian and Dick Broad have said to the party followers: "What are you going to do about it, and all the Republicans have shut up like clams when they listened to Vivian's and Broad's assertion.

Oh! It is a nice prospect ahead for the Republicans who wanted such a man as Joel F. Vaile or any one of a hundred Republicans to go to the senate who had done something for the party, besides putting up the dough, as Simon has done.

ANYTHING FOR A CHANGE.

From the Manitou Record.

While Simon Guggenheim is not the choice of the Record for United States senator, yet we feel absolutely certain he will do something else besides knock his own state, thus he will be an improvement on the present incumbent. We don't think Simon is entitled to this exalted position, but it can't be belittled more than it has during the term almost ended. Most anything is an improvement on the present situation.

GOVERNOR BUCHTEL'S INAUGURATION

To the Editor of The Gazette:

If any state of the union has ever had its life honored by such a sane, wholesome, human, spiritual (in the best sense) inaugural address as that which Governor Buchtel delivered last Tuesday I have failed to learn of it. As a piece of political literature it deserves to rank with the best American product in point of clearness in precision, in homely yet dignified use of the English language.

Still more is an exponent of the simple truths of citizenship, the ideals of political and corporate life, the insistent demands for unvarnished honesty and large public-spirited statesmanship for which the common people always stand, it challenges at once the admiration of all right thinking men and takes its place as a human document that represents in outline of the best things in American life.

I shall be greatly surprised if a few weeks shall not bring forth a large sheaf of editorial comment from east and west reflecting credit upon the state that owns such a gubernatorial voice. With all our faults as a people, we have a true instinct for right thing. It is this in the last analysis that makes us great.

A FILIPINO DEFENDS HIS PEOPLE

To the Editor of The Gazette:

The article in yesterday evening's Telegraph on the Filipinos was indeed a misfortune one and shock I have not a little. In that article it was said that Mr. Read was the head and governor of the Igorrotes in the Philippines, the land where the pastime was chopping off one another's heads.

The man who put those expressions in the paper did not think long enough to realize how misleading such a statement would be to many people here and how painful to the Filipino student now dwelling in lovely Colorado Springs.

Mr. Read was and is now the governor of the province of Lepanto Bontoc. This province constitutes but a small portion of the whole country of the Philippines. The Igorrotes constitute but an exceedingly small portion of the whole population of that nation. Therefore let it be well understood that the Filipinos as a people can not be held more responsible for the few criminals who, as a pastime, occasionally "chop off one another's heads" than the American people for the lynchings in the south.

So far as moral character is concerned I am proud to say that my country possesses a very good one. The Philippines had been a very strong Catholic and a very good Christian nation and possessed many schools and at least one great university before the pious Pilgrims landed on the famous Plymouth Rock. The Filipinos know quite well what is wrong and right and what is true and false. So I repeat to say that my land is the land where the pastime is "chopping off one another's head" is a rank injustice.

In speaking of independence Mr. Read said that the Filipinos are not fitted for self-government. This is Mr. Read's idea. Before the Spanish-American war many Americans thought different. Many think so now. So far the Filipino has had no chance to show.

THE FREE SEED GRAFT

From the Chicago Record-Herald.

In his annual report the secretary of agriculture says: "The congressional seed work for the year has been conducted along practically the same lines as in the past. The number of packages of miscellaneous vegetable and flower seed sent out during the year was about 7,000,000. There has been no change in this number during the past five years."

There has however been considerable criticism of the practice and with the beginning of hearings on the subject before the house committee on agriculture it is interesting to recall the hostile campaign of last year. It was shown that the distribution costs nothing like a quarter of a million dollars and that it is practically valueless. It did not help the agriculture of the country for several reasons. A large percentage of the packages never reached the farms. The seeds sent out were of common varieties so that there was no gain such as could be claimed from the introduction of new ones. The real result was a kind of petty graft for congressmen who burdened the mails with much stuff that went to waste or was destroyed, on the chance of pleasing a constituent here and there.

Naturally the distribution is opposed by seed men but it is condemned also by farmers' organizations, horticultural societies and the faculties of experiment stations and agricultural colleges. That it should be generally condemned is clear for it works out simply as a fraud upon the people.

The case against it was so strong that at the last session the committee omitted the item for free seed distribution but it was reinserted by the house by a vote of 173 to 83. An excuse for this action was that no one had appeared before the committee to advocate the omission. As a consequence a delegation of seed dealers did appear and plans were laid for a determined fight this year against the old evil.

The practice as it has prevailed is both indefensible and contemptible. It should not have been tolerated so long and it is to be hoped that there is honesty enough in congress to put an end to it now.

Signs and Omens of Bad Luck That Good Virginians Swear By

In the Rural Districts Some of the Ignorant Depend Entirely Upon Superstition.

From the Washington Post.

WASHINGTON, self-admitted center of culture and enlightenment, looks upon superstition as a form of devil worship that vanished with witch burning. Yet within two hours' ride of the capital are communities that despite public schools and church influences and problems and things are as deeply saturated with superstition as any society butte that flitted through the intellectual twilight of the middle ages.

In the upper reaches of the Virginia counties that flank the Blue Ridge on the east and climb the mountain shoulders until they look down over the summit into the Shenandoah valley the daily life of the dull dweller is hedged in with countless signs and omens, all portent of evil. Through them he walks, ever fearful lest in propitiating one genius of disaster he offend against another.

A religious and church-going folk are they on Sunday. The rest of the week they devote to keeping out of the clutches of "bad luck," the modern form of that disagreeable and uncomfortable old god of the Zidonians, Baal, who visited them with dire and original punishments when he didn't get his "tribute of the first born." They don't broil babies these latter day worshipers but they keep themselves in perpetual hot water.

"Hance," said a sturdy old farmer of Big Cobbler Mountain to his son, as the boy started out on a June morning to hoe the weed-choked corn, "ther moons in ther second quarter, an' ye kin chop em down them weeds it grew worse'n ever. Better wait a week."

Whip-poor-wills Mean Sudden Death

"Sides, I want ver ter go for ther doctor. Ker mas allin this mawnin an' durn whippo will set on ther horse-block an' hollerin' like blight fell. I clodded him off. Ker know what that means."

Whip-poor-wills, that the ignorant may know as much as Hance, mean early and sudden death. For years they had made that block a rendezvous for their nightly chorals while the family remained healthy as hoosiers. But it shook not the old man's belief in the faith of his fathers. The doctor was hurriedly fetched only to find ma recovered as pert as a cricket.

"Don's yer put that sassafras wood in their kitchen fire," cried the old lady to her helping hand one day, a twelve-year-old girl as yet unlearned in the lore of the hills. "Every singel cow on ther place'll go dry if yer do. Git put in ther pan fire."

A listening city man wondered at this fine distinction.

"Law, chile," sagely explained the old lady, "it's jes' puttin' sassafras in ther kitchen fire what make cows go dry, it don make no difference in any other fire. Why, when I wuz a gal over in Rapp'hannock, wise saws and ancient instances were so piously cited to sustain the theory of interrelation of sassafras, kitchen fire and cow.

Sometimes they hit it. One day the city man bent on a little exercise in wood chopping strolled through the house with an axe on his shoulder.

"Gib ole Kate ith ther axe," said the old man in pallid terror. "Don't yer know it's ther worst luck in ther world ter fetch ex ax thoo er house? What yer thinkin 'bout, a-yhow?"

Brought Genuine Bad Luck

An hour later as the city man approached the dwelling, his ears were flooded with a torrent of high treble recriminations mingled with a deep flow of apologies.

They gushed from door and window. The city man betook himself back to the placid forest where he abode until the gusty Niagara had subsided. As he emerged the old man met him.

"I knowed yer'd make trouble with that axe," he said accusingly. "Yer hadn't got fer ez ther barn 'fo' ther old woman found er jug er moonshine hid under ther bed an' I'd done swore off las' Crismas fer er year. Let this be er lesson ter yer, m' son, an' don't never take er ax thoo er house no mo'."

The city man began to believe there was something in it.

"Peacocks won't stay with us," explained the old lady when the city man suggested them as an ornament to the velvety blue grass lawn. "They won't stay with po' folks."

"We used ter have er beautiful pair of 'em. They stayed here fer years, till we los' that lawsuit 'ith ther Cyarriers an' got po'. Ther very nex' night them peacocks went down ther mountain, pass' Dorsa Heffin's place an' ole man Coosers who's both po' folks, an' didn't stop 'till they got plum' ter Col. Waller's, that owns bout half o' Warren county.

"They've been thar ever sence, and they'll stay thar 'till ther Wallers gits po' an' then they'll move on. No, I won't ter use ter git peacocks hyah."

One sign the sixes split on. The men held it is worse to drink whisky on the waxing the women on the waning moon. They agree, however, that a given and sufficient amount will make a man twice as drunk and twice as long when the moon is on the wane, so it is really a question for dialecticians and prohibitionists.

Be Careful With Your Hair

Cuttings and combings from the hair must be carefully collected and burned in the kitchen fire that altar to the god of bad luck. Otherwise a general run of ill fortune will sit by the hearth for an indefinite term.

If the birds get the hair the ill luck is more specific. The miserable man has a headache that no coal tar product can relieve until the nestlings leave their hair lined home. The unfortunate woman loses her remaining locks, unhelped by hair tonics.

"That fool put 'em on ther barn on ther dark of ther moon," complained the old man when he saw the shingles curling up like the box of a tobacco gnat. "An' he laid ther rail fence in ther pasture on ther dark of ther moon. I wuz sick an' couldn't git out an' learn him some sense. That's why it's sunk two rails deep in ther ground a-ready. It'll go plum out er sight in ther earth in er couple er years. Cos' twuz ther moon!"

That evening the city man heard the old lady scolding the kitchen girl because she had set a hen when according to the almanac ther sun wuz in ther feet.

"Ain't yer got sense 'nough ter know every egg hit makes ole moon, yer ackin angelly?"

That girl was learning fast. Nor did it uproot her newly planted wisdom when three weeks later the city man pointed out that every egg had hatched. She was of the hills, and replied:

"Sumthin' must o' crossed ther bad luck."

Whether the groundhog or the gopher is the abler competitor of the weather bureau is the question 'round many a long winter fireside. The mountaineers on the eastern slope hold for the groundhog—they are plentiful there—while those on the west cling to the goosebone, doubtless because if it works at all it predicts a hard winter, and they love the omen of evil.

Further down where the level land marches with the mountains foot the eastern code of perpetual disaster is relaxed. Some of the signs are lucky.

Thus a shilin' crow—he must be in flight—brings an urgent of good luck, an omen descended no doubt from Romulus and his buzzards.

The Influence of the Moon

Of course they adhere to the bacon rind treatment for warts as far superior to lunar caustic. Rub the rind on the warts, walk backward around the house three times just as the first star of evening appears, and then bury the rind under the eaves. When the next rain drips from the roof away go the warts. But you must be sure to get the first star.

Here the moon still powerful, fit nothing, bears might.

"I've always had good crops, sah," a certain comfortable farmer of the hills had to say, "I always plant things that yield above ground like corn and wheat on the light of the moon and those that yield beneath like potatoes on the dark. I've never failed."

"Yes," he reluctantly admitted, "I do use lots of fertilizer. But the moon—and the city man listened to a monologue on the virtues as a crop raiser.

"When yer hev er dawg that don' know ruff'ner bark when he trees er varmint, confined a dweller in the Rappahannock valley, tha's only one way ter learn him how. Take er green gourd that's been raised in the northwest corner of ther field—yer mus' pull it up ter Sudday—an' ther firs' time that dawg trees an' doin' jes' give tongue, take ther gourd an' bust it wide open over his head. It'll learn him ter bark treed all right."

The city man found a green gourd in the magic corner. It was hard enough to split an anvil, a blow from it would have started a volable discourse out of the lips of a deaf mute. He no longer marveled that the dawg barked.

"Rats don' bother me no mo' sence I follow fum over in Hominy Hollow tell me how ter get rid of 'em," said the same wise one. "When they gits bad I ketch er blacksnake, one er these hyar racer kin, an' I cuts off his head Sunday mawnin' fo' breakfast. Then I puts it under er rock in ther backyard a-pintin' toward the hole. Jes' as soon as ther sun sets every durned rat on ther place 'll start an' go right thar way that snake head's pintin', an' yes they gits drowded."

A plan cheaper than the Pied Piper.

When the city man came home he found himself stopping to make a cross mark with his toe every time he turned back and shuddered whenever he heard a howling dog, the deadliest of mountain death omens. He insists that every one is superstitious at heart.

SMOKING ON THE STAGE

Cigar or Cigaret Often Adds Much to Effectiveness of Scene

From the Kansas City Star.

Of all the artificialities that actors employ as aids to their talents what is more eloquent than the pipe, the cigar or the cigaret? What can radiate more badness than the adventurous manner of puffing at a cigaret? What can make more emphatic the dispassionateness of the stage man of the world than his lazy way of extracting from an alligator skin case a big cigar and his slow, comfortable way of smoking it? What would become of the rural atmosphere of the "by gosh" drama if the dear old farmer would not depend upon his homely pipe to help give him a personality of sanctity and virtue? And then there is the opium pipe. Though of course it never contains opium on the stage could anything produce a more satisfying impression of extreme cussedness and wickedness?

Remember "Secret Service" and how effectively William Gillette used the cigar? Gillette didn't have to say much in that famous telegraph ticker scene; the cigar said it for him. Again in Sherlock Holmes how splendid was the achievement of the cigar. In was in fact, quite the most important thing in that melodramatic scene when the redoubtable Moriarty, real so and all fully fooled, he collect how after the lamp was shushed and the room lit in inky darkness the red glow of the weed gave Holmes and his fair companion an opportunity to escape?

Time was that no villain could be sufficiently villainous without the aid of the cigaret. His gray about the temples, patent leather shoes and a white vest coat were not enough. A silver cigaret case was a positive requirement. After gracefully extracting one of the slender white "coffin nails" from the case and lighting it with an air of slow indifference how advantageously could he display an air of bravado and contemptuous regard by snapping the case shut a few inches in front of the hero's nose and accompanying the action with an eloquent "bah!"

Perhaps you have noticed that the long thin or excessively fat cigar on the stage is an indication of great wealth on the part of the smoker. The favorite brand of the usual capitalist either looks like a pencil or a baseball bat. He has a way of shoving his hands deep in his pocket, rearing back in portly pompousness and rolling his cigar about in his mouth. And then when he is considering some weighty question invariably he holds his cigar in his hand and contemplates the burning end. These mannerisms are calculated to suggest an abundance of cash and do—most always.

In the society drama cigarets are inseparable companions of dress suited young persons who indulge in more or less clever persiflage. Their hero men are calculated to be much more impressive when championed by a mouthful of smoke. Besides, the cigaret gives employment to those superfluous appendages—the hands. And it is in insignificant art to smoke cigarets gracefully on the stag. An instance of this was furnished by Frank Carpenter, who plays Trampas in "The Virginian." How eloquent was the suggestion of devilry in his manner of rolling and smoking cigarets. It was done so deftly, easily, yes and gracefully. Carpenter can roll a cigaret with one hand. He worked for months to acquire that art.

Cigars which are smoked on the stage are usually supplied by the property man. They may look like expensive brands but be it known the cigars never cost more than five cents. Some actors bring their own but if they don't they get the five centers. It is sometimes a test and a great one when an actor can smoke one of the property man's choicest ropes and utter epigrams at the same time.

AN ECCENTRIC PEER

Wonderful Underground Dwelling of the Duke of Portland

London Cable.

Welbeck Abbey, where the late eccentric Duke of Portland dug underground rooms and passages to hide himself from the world, is to be visited by the king and queen, as the guests of the present Duke and Duchess of Portland.

Their majesties will inspect the wonderful subterranean annex which includes a huge riding school, now used for dancing. There is also a picture gallery, a chapel and a library, but they are seldom used except when royalty visits Welbeck.

The late Duke of Portland is said to have spent $15,000,000 on the burrowings. He had a morbid dread of being seen or seeing his fellow men and lived in solitary state underground.

When he went to stay at his London house, a gloomy old place surrounded by a high wall, he traveled the entire distance in his brougham with the blinds down. The carriage was placed with the duke inside on a freight car and sent to town by rail and he was driven from the station to his door after being invisible throughout the journey.

Even now that he is dead, it is still uncertain whether he did not live a double life and under the name of Druce run a bazaar in London. Lawsuit after lawsuit has been fought on the question without solving it.

The Duchess of Portland, who is perhaps the best all around sporting woman in England, does not figure prominently in society but confines her entertaining to shooting parties at Welbeck, concerts balls in the underground hall, hunting parties, etc. It is not expected that she will take her place among society leaders until the debut of her eldest daughter, Lady Victoria Lentinck, who is not yet seventeen and is a good daughter of the late queen.

The Duke of Portland, who was until lately master of the horse to King Edward, is a fine sportsman and learned naturalist. He maintains at Welbeck a very complete private zoo where strange beasts like kangaroos, American bison, llama and antelopes roam the park at will. He is one of the chief owners of race horses in England and gives all his winnings to charity.

CHILEANS CALL AMERICANS YANKEES

From the Los Angeles Times.

They almost invariably call us Yankees here in Chile and never "Americanos" or even North Americanos. The term is not the least reproachful—here is in Mexico they call us gringos when they want to show their contempt—and it is used by all classes. The Chilean papers all refer to Mr. Root as the distinguido secretario Yankee, and their society columns always report legation receptions as held by the Ministro Yankee. At first, of course, you dislike the name but after a while you learn that nothing unkind and often quite the contrary is meant by it and you cease elevating your eyebrows and trying to look as if you didn't care, finally you begin to use it yourself. Fancy telling a person with your own lips that you are a Yankee!

HOLBROOK & PERKINS

A RECORD AUTOMOBILE RUN

Stevens and Fetcher Go to Denver in Premier Machine in 2 hours and 28 Minutes.

The automobile record between Colorado Springs and Denver was smashed again last Wednesday, 11 minutes being taken off the previous best record. The run was made in two hours and 28 minutes.

The new record makers are Frank H. Stevens, son of H. H. Stevens, proprietor of the Alta Vista hotel, and John Fetcher, demonstrator of the Premier Automobile company of Indianapolis, Ind. The machine in which the fast time was made is a new Premier, No. 24, of 28-horsepower, weighing 2,275 pounds. The previous best record of two hours and 39 minutes between here and Denver, was recently made by a 40-horsepower Winton machine.

Messrs. Stevens and Fetcher, the latter driving, left here at 1:35 o'clock in the afternoon and drew up in front of the Savoy hotel, Denver, at 4:03 in the afternoon having traversed a distance of 75 miles without a stop, because of a breakdown or adjustment.

Speaking of the trip Mr. Stevens said:

"We would have beaten our record by several minutes had we not been unavoidably delayed by a few incidents. The first delay of three minutes was caused by my bat blowing off and our backing up 200 yards to recover it. At one railroad crossing we slowed up perhaps a half a minute, while two trains were passing. The third delay was caused by two gipsy wagons blocking the road just this side of Palmer Lake and we lost three minutes more before we could get by them.

"A rather unusual thing about the run was that Mr. Fetcher used the second gear only three times on the trip."

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT LARGE

Last Month Showed Increase of 100 Over December, 1905—Dietrich Makes Report.

According to the report of John Dietrich, superintendent of schools, for the month of December, the enrollment in the public schools was 5,011, an increase of 101 over the enrollment for December, 1905. The average daily attendance was 4,136, or 95 per cent of the total enrollment. An interesting feature shown by the report is the fact that during the last month the schools received 1,063 visits from patrons. Teachers in the schools visited 191 homes.

Work has already begun for the transfer of the pupils from the different grades for next term. A number of teachers are out of the city on leave of absence, and several substitute teachers will be placed in the schools at the opening of the next school term. The question of adding another department to the Irywild school is also being considered. At present there are three rooms in use.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

TO PENITENTIARY—Sheriff C. P. Grimes yesterday took Virginia Moore, colored, and Harry Henderson to the state penitentiary at Canon City. MARGARET M'INTOSH WINS

Columbia School Girl Captures Silver Loving Cup in Anti-Cigarette League Spelling Match.

In the presence of 1,000 cheering children and men and women, Margaret McIntosh, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. McIntosh, 840 East Platte avenue, representing the Columbia school, last night captured the silver loving cup offered to the winner of class B by the Colorado Springs Anti-Cigarette league, at the spelling match in the High school auditorium. The cup was presented by Professor Pattison, of Colorado college, who was one of the judges. Receiving second, third, fourth and fifth places, respectively, were Glenn Kelling, Longfellow; Elves Courtright, Midland; Ina Langridge, Longfellow, and Irene Waterman, Garfield. There were 32 contestants.

When the contest narrowed down to only two contestants, Margaret McIntosh and Glenn Kelling, the audience could no longer restrain itself and the supporters of the two spellers gave cheer after cheer. Professor Keating, of Pueblo, pronounced the word, "fern," a plant, and Kelling spelled it "f-i-r-n." Miss McIntosh then spelled the word correctly and was pronounced the winner.

Judging the contest were Professor Pattison, Professor Keating and Charles B. Hall, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. The auditorium was packed.

This evening at 7:30 o'clock the contestants in class A will spell. The judges will be Professor Pattison, Professor Loomis, of Pueblo, and H. E. Smith, of Canon City. Every seat in the auditorium has been sold for tonight. Following is the list of contestants and the schools which they represent:

Lowell—Philip Anderson and Ella Brown.

Washington—Herle Ayres and Florence Adams; substitutes, Cecil Rodgers, Eva McCormac.

Lillier—John Zimmerman, Ora Kennedy.

Manitou—Flint Satchoe, Hazel Brown.

Roswell—John Dixon, Dora Hasse.

Whittier—Blanch Antonsen, Milford Taylor; substitutes, Jennie Barr, Marie Foote.

Columbia—Edna McMillan, Wallace Argo.

Bristol—Beulah Bartholomew, Bayard Brewer; substitutes, Dora Shields, Homer Madole.

Midland—Ben Appleby, Lotta Wilson.

Bancroft—James Reilly, Ida Hazlett.

Steele—Fred Kampf, Salome Conrad; substitutes, Harry Johnson, Jean Ormes.

Garfield—Wallace Smith, Nancy Daniels; substitutes, Dorothy Jessop, Willie Waters.

TALKS OF NOME DISTRICT

J. P. Pearson, Prominent Alaska Mining Man, in This City—Has Extensive Interests There.

"Ten million dollars in gold was the output of the Nome district for the twelve months ending last October," said J. P. Pearson, who left Nome City on the last steamer from there and is now on a business and pleasure trip through Colorado. He is registered at the Alamo hotel and will see the sights of the Colorado Springs district before proceeding to Denver, where he goes on mining business.

The population of the most northerly of American cities is 10,000 in summer and about half of that number during the winter months, from November to June, when navigation opens. The city has all the modern improvements and although only six years old has practically all of the luxuries and conveniences found in any city this side of the 49th parallel. A railroad 115 miles in length is almost completed from Nome inland to the Kugoruk district where immense coal and gold fields have been opened up, and the completion of ditches 36 miles long from the California river will furnish ample water during the coming season for hydraulic mining on a large scale which has been heretofore impossible.

"It is a safe estimate that within five years the gold output of Alaska alone will be $50,000,000 a year," said Mr. Pearson, "which will be largely due to the operations of the hydraulic mining companies that are now prepared to handle large territories averaging from $1.00 upwards in gold per cubic yard. Such placer fields cannot be worked profitably by hand labor but there are immense tracts of lands that will yield handsome profits to the hydraulic companies."

Mr. Pearson is at the head of a company which controls water rights to the amount of 9,000 cubic inches of flow and have almost completed ditches to the hydraulic fields. The company has an absolute monopoly of the available water for hydraulic mining on about 100,000 acres of valuable gold fields and for this water the charge is from $1 to $1.80 per cubic inch of flow every 24 hours. During the summer the company will have its ditches completed and will then be ready to rent out 9,000 inches of water which will bring an income of from $10,000 to $12,000 per day. Part of this water, however, will be used by the company to develop its own placer lands, amounting to about 6,000 acres, known to be rich in mineral.

PREACHES TO BIG AUDIENCE

Interest Grows in Meetings at First Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Arthur N. Thompson, D. D., of Northfield, Mass., preached to a large audience at the First Presbyterian church last night. Interest in these meetings grows from night to night. By the time of beginning last night the large crowd of people required the opening of the auditorium which was soon well filled. The evangelist preached earnestly and clearly from the text, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved."

Services will be held again tonight, but there will be no meeting tomorrow night. This afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a meeting for women led by Mrs. Thompson, wife of the evangelist.

CHESS CLUB ORGANIZED

Alex Adams Made President and R. L. Wilson Secretary.

At a meeting of 20 of the chess players of Colorado Springs at 13 East Pike's Peak avenue, last night, a chess club was organized and the following officers were elected: Alex Adams, president; R. L. Wilson, secretary and treasurer. A committee, consisting of William Ord, R. L. Wilson, Alex Adams, was appointed to secure and furnish suitable rooms for the club. By-laws were adopted.

Arrangements will be made at once to secure matches with teams outside of Colorado Springs. The first game will probably be played with a Denver team.

MERCHANTS PROTEST

Pass Resolutions Opposing the Closing of Thoroughfare—Several New Members Elected.

A resolution in opposition to the proposed closing of Pike's Peak avenue according to the plans formulated by the Santa Fe railway, was passed at the regular meeting of the Merchants association of Colorado Springs, held at the Alamo hotel last night. The matter was brought up as a result of the recent negotiations between the railway company, the city council and the property owners. A lively discussion ensued and the subject was discussed from all points of view with the result that the resolution opposing the proposed change was passed by a large majority. The chief reasons advanced in support of the resolution were that the closing of the street would practically shut off the eastern part of the city from direct communication with the business center and would seriously interfere with such institutions as the Children's home, the School for the Deaf and the Blind, and the St. Francis hospital.

The legislation now pending in congress in favor of increased pay for postal clerks was brought to the attention of the association through a letter from the chamber of commerce at Everett, Washington, asking for support of the measure. As a result a resolution was passed placing the association on record as being in favor of the proposed Wilson bill or any other legislation having for its object the increasing of postal clerks' pay and asking the Colorado congressmen to lend their aid to the measure.

No action was taken on the question of indorsing the proposition for a new stove and range industry at Colorado City, as the committee appointed to report on the matter failed to make their report. Another large industry which is seeking a location here has been reported to the association but the details were not considered sufficiently materialized to be made public.

Following are new members admitted last night: J. J. McTigue, C. L. Herrington, Samuel Schleising, C. L. Smith, W. W. Williamson, R. R. Bingham, M. Greenberg, Robert Jones, L. J. Newman, E. R. Joyce, S. F. Wheatman, C. L. Tatt and Frank Cotton.

It was voted to hold a ten-cent social in the Grace parish house on the evening of Monday, January 21.

ROSSEN TAKEN TO PUEBLO

Will Be Prosecuted There—Stevens to Stand Trial Here.

Ralph Rossen, one of the two Denver boarding house burglars, who were arrested here for crimes committed in this city, Pueblo and Denver, was taken to Pueblo last night by Officer Samuel Brugard, of the Smelter city police force. Rossen will be prosecuted there.

This morning Detective Shultz will take S. T. Stevens, alias "Rosie" Jones, the pal of Rossen, to Denver, where Stevens will go with Shultz to the "plant" of stolen goods, and also reveal where the burglars sold quantities of stuff. Stevens will be then brought back to Colorado Springs and prosecuted for a theft he committed here.

SALVATION ARMY CHANGE

Ensign and Mrs. Edgell Will Go to Denver.

Ensign and Mrs. Edgell, who have been in charge of the Salvation Army work in Colorado Springs for nearly two years, have been transferred to Denver, and will give up their work here upon the arrival of their successors, Adjutant and Mrs. Woodward, of Roswell, N. M. A reception will be given next Wednesday night in Salvation Army hall to Adjutant and Mrs. Woodward who are expected to arrive here this week.

During the time Ensign and Mrs. Edgell have had charge of the work of the Salvation Army in Colorado Springs, considerable progress has been made. Captain Kunkel will accompany them to Denver.

SARATOGA IS BEING RESTORED

Shaft Will Have Been Drained to Bottom by February 1.

IDAHO SPRINGS, Colo., Jan. 10.—John Owen reports that in spite of great discouragements the work of restoring the Saratoga mine is progressing and within a short time it will be possible to begin shipping. The shaft will have been drained to the bottom by February 1. The water level is now 60 feet below the eighth level and receding at the rate of five feet per day. The bad air from the eighth level rising in on the sixth is causing the greatest trouble, and has for several days prevented the workmen from entering the drift. They are engaged in clearing the caved ground in the eighth and expect almost daily to re-establish circulation between the eighth and sixth, which are connected by an unraise. When this is done a force of men will be put at work upon the ground in the two levels of which there is a great amount ready for mining. With the sixth, seventh and eighth levels opened and operating there will be little discouragement at the delay that will necessarily occur in the work in the mine.

In the Newhouse tunnel contractors are driving the drift ahead and making a fair footage, though the place is so wet that the men work under extremely adverse conditions.

By February 1 the mine will be on the list of big producers.

STOCK MARKET DULL

MOVEMENT OF PRICES QUITE SLUGGISH.

Activities of Interstate Commerce Is Reflected in the General Depression—Bonds Irregular.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The stock market today was exceedingly dull and narrow and the movement of prices very sluggish. There was some appearance of good absorption of a few stocks which had a sympathetic strengthening effect on the general market, but [illegible] The demand that impressed sentiment was for a few of the usual speculative favorites and had the appearance of revived operations by pools which were previously active in the stocks but which have been quiescent for some time. St. Paul and Reading were especially favored in this class of operation. There was a striking movement also in New York Central and some of the industrials below the first class, especially among the railroad equipment companies, made good gains. There were laggards in the upward movement and exceptions after it had been inaugurated.

The activities of the interstate commerce commission and of other governmental functionaries in measures of inquiry or opposition to corporations seemed to focus the depression. It was perceptible in the early heaviness of Union Pacific and also in the weakness of the Gould stocks, presumably based on the suit of the Missouri state officials against the combination amongst those roads. There was a sharp break in the Canadian Pacific group, which seemed to be connected with the large advances which have occurred in those stocks in connection with the hopes of dividend increases which have not been fully realized. The impression due to the governmental activities in pursuit of corporation irregularities was deepened by the news of steps taken to place legal obstacles in the way of the departure out of the jurisdiction of the authorities of influential financiers [illegible] information is sought in the pursuit of the inquiry.

On the side of the money market developments were in favor of the market. The postponement by the secretary of the treasury of the date for the return of $12,000,000 of government deposits with the national banks, so as to set forward the payments of the instalments two weeks, was received with relief as the removal of a threatened embarrassment before the recuperation of the banks had been sufficiently completed to make the transaction easy. It was accepted also as implying a further postponement for the call of the $18,000,000 of government deposits which it was intended originally to begin to call in on February 1. The Bank of England's retention of the 6 per cent discount rate was not a surprise in view of the continued heavy demands upon that institution. Withdrawals for today were $7,100,000 for shipment from London to South America. The strong weekly return was thus neutralized. It was made evident also that a decline in sterling exchange at New York to the gold import point would be regarded a disturbing incident in the London money market. The Bank of France reported a small decrease in gold holdings but a heavy loan contraction. The call loan rate here ruled below 6 per cent and there were no bids higher than 6 per cent for time loans for any period. The disturbing effect of the break in the Gould and Canadian Pacific groups [illegible] earlier strength of the market and the closing was irregular with a mixed showing of net changes.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales par value $1,952,000.

U. S. 2s coupon declined 1-8 per cent on call.

Furnished by Otis & Hough, bankers and brokers.

WHEAT CLOSES FIRM

SENTIMENT IN PIT BULLISH ALL DAY.

Good General Demand in Evidence. Trading in Corn Pit Active Oats and Provisions Firm.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Sentiment in the wheat pit was bullish all day and a good general demand was in evidence for the greater part of the session. The buyers were led by local shorts although commission houses with northwest connections were lively bidders. The greater part of the offerings came from small holders. The chief factor contributing to the strength of the market, outside of the small northwestern movement, were firm cables, damage by rain in the Ohio valley to the fall-sown crop and an active demand for cash wheat at Minneapolis. The market eased off somewhat about the middle of the day on realizing sales but quickly rallied on a renewed demand by shorts and commission houses. The close was firm. May opened 1-4 to 3-8 higher at 76 1-8 to 76 1-4, sold between 75 7-8 and 76 1-4@3-8 and closed at 76 1-4@3-8.

Trading in the corn pit was quite active, commission houses and local shorts being good buyers. Cash houses were the leading sellers. Firm cables, small local receipts and the poor grading of arrivals were the main reasons for the firmness shown. The market was steady all day and closed at a slight advance. May opened unchanged to 1-8 higher at 43 5-8 to 43 3-4, advanced to 43 7-8 and closed at 43 7-8@3-4.

The oats market was firm. Trading was in small volume. May opened a shade higher at 36 1-4, sold up to 36 3-8 and closed at the higher point.

Provisions were firm all day on buying by local packers and outside investors. At the close May pork was up 2½@5c at $16.82 1-2. Lard was up 2½@7½c at $9.50. Ribs were [illegible] $9.10.

JONATHAN YIELDS THOUSANDS

Lessees Wall and Swope Strike Immensely Rich Ore.

Special to The Gazette.

OURAY, Colo., Jan. 10.—Ore averaging $1,000 to $2,000 a ton has been opened in the Jonathan by Lessees John Wall and Charles Swope, who estimate that the pocket will yield $40,000 to $100,000. They leased the property six weeks ago. The ore was found in the lower level.

Arps brothers, who leased on this property several years ago, took out a snug fortune, but since then until Wall & Swope made their strike lessees have found but little mineral.

American Nettie lessees are operating successfully on new ground.

The Chipeta tunnel is being driven steadily ahead in virgin territory.

At the Thistle Down the Mendota vein has been cut and makes a good showing in lead, copper and silver. The vein is three feet wide and one foot of the hanging wall is good mill dirt.

STRIKE ON SHURTLIFF

REMARKABLE FIND IN VIRGIN GROUND.

All of the Ore Is Literally Covered With Sylvanite—Will Ship Sixty Dollars to the Ton.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Jan. 10.—One of the most remarkable strikes that has ever been made in the Cripple Creek district has been opened up partially during the past week in the Shurtleff claim of the company on Bull hill on the tenth level or 850 feet below the surface. It was shot to something entirely new to the property, and was found in virgin ground.

General Manager L. G. Carlton has driven a crosscut through the shoot for a distance of 27 feet, and one wall has not as yet been encountered. Lengthwise only about 30 feet of work has been done. All of the ore is literally covered and impregnated with sylvanite. The rock will undoubtedly ship clear across the shoot at the rate of $60 in gold to the ton. Grabbed and picked samples run to unheard of figures, but a close and careful assay taken clear across the immense shoot indicates that the ore will run $60 per ton on a low estimate.

The Findley mine is undoubtedly today one of the greatest properties in the camp. Its physical and financial condition are A No. 1. The company is now shipping regularly, and has a force of about 125 men which is being gradually increased. The tonnage will be close to the maximum along about February 1.

GOLD SOVEREIGN DOING WELL

Company in Good Physical Condition—Officers Elected for Ensuing Year.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Jan. 10.—The directors of the Gold Sovereign Gold Mining and Tunnel company held a meeting in Colorado Springs and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: A. Rapp, president and general manager; J. E. Jones, vice president, and H. L. Butler, Jr., secretary-treasurer. The Gold Sovereign mine is producing a nice tonnage by the lease system, and all are making some money. The company has adopted the system of opening up ore in other words doing the development work and then leasing blocks at the rate of 50 per cent royalty. Under this plan both company and lessees are doing well and the Gold Sovereign company is in better shape than it has been for a long time. The ore being shipped cut runs from $25 to $30 in gold to the ton.

President Rapp is giving his personal and undivided attention to the development work as well as looking after the leasing operations, with the result that the mine is getting along famously. The ore being mined is being shipped to the Portland mill until the Gold Sovereign mill is finished.

DISCOVERY IN PARK COUNTY

Twelve-Foot Vein Encountered at Depth of Forty Feet.

Special to The Gazette.

FAIRPLAY, Colo., Jan. 10.—One of the most important mineral discoveries made in Park county for years has recently been opened by Dr. McFarland, Frank Loomis, William Blockley, A. A. Dollison, P. W. O'Brien and Dr. Cramer, lessees of the Clover, Little Nell and Minnie'a claims, in the Sacramento mining district, which are owned by Cohen & Link.

At a depth of 40 feet the lessees have encountered a large body of shipping ore which is 12 feet across and can be traced for quite a distance. Several carloads of ore have already been taken out and all indications point to a big shipper.

This strike will cause renewed activity in the Sacramento and Horseshoe districts.

BLUE FLAG CYANIDE MILL

Will Be One of Best Equipped Plants in District—Work Being Rushed.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Jan. 10.—The Blue Flag cyanide mill is being rushed to completion as fast as possible. This company is building a new cyanide mill on its Raven hill property as fast as possible to do so. The mill will handle Blue Flag ore exclusively and will have a capacity of about 150 tons daily. This mill when completed will be one of the best and most thoroughly up-to-date plants in the camp. It will cost in the neighborhood of $12,000.

BALDERSTON SUBLEASING

Quit Work on Own Account on Pike's Peak and Porcupine.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Jan. 10.—George Balderston, who has a lease on the Pike's Peak and Porcupine claims on Bull hill, from the Stratton estate, has quit work on both claims on his own account and is subleasing. There are four sets operating and all have a little ore and are making occasional shipments of ore that will give values of from $50 to $40 in gold to the ton. Practically all of the mining is being done on the 300-foot levels.

RICH STRIKE IN THE SPICER?

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Jan. 10.—There is a rumor to the effect that a rich strike has been made in the Spicer claim at Victor, by operating lessees. It is said that a three-foot body of ore which will run from three to five ounces and shows a quantity of sylvanite has been exposed. The story is not verified.

TRUST THEIR FELLOW MEN

Members of the Don't Worry Club and Their Bags on Street Cars.

From the New York Sun.

The stranger in the city, or the city dweller not much accustomed to traveling, boarding a street car with a traveling bag, is likely to look after it there very carefully. He may put the bag on the floor in front of him, and there put his legs over it, so that nobody could move it without his knowing it. The stranger may take the extra precaution of setting the bag up on the seat beside him and resting his arm upon it. But neither takes any chances.

No such anxiety is betrayed by those travelers on the cars who are accustomed to carrying things about on them. Some of them leave things out on the platform with a cool reliance on their security.

This last, however, is a state of mind that is arrived at only after a considerable experience of the safety of things in the city. The boy, or for that matter, the man, not much experienced in this way, is likely when he leaves something outside to get a seat if he can by a window at that end, where he can keep his stuff outside under his eye. But if he keeps on carrying things in this way he is likely to grow easier about them.

Men carrying sample cases, and accustomed to carrying them, plunge aboard the car at the front platform and straight over to the far side of it and slam their cases down there and go into the car without a further thought of them. Messenger boys plant boxes or bundles there in the same way.

Washerwoman, or woman carrying market baskets, put their baskets down there quite as a matter of course and don't worry over them, while one unaccustomed to carrying a basket about would carry it inside the car and there perhaps hold it for safety on his knees. Messenger girls accustomed to this way show the same confidence that marks the messenger boys.

Here, for instance, was a girl carrying a big oblong box from some dressmaker's establishment, this box with the broad leather strap, around it to keep it closed and by which to carry it.

The girls set this box up on the front platform preparatory to stepping up herself and the motorman has time to reach down and pick the box up by the strap and set it over himself at the far end of the platform while the girl is entering the car.

So the stranger in this city, not familiar with its ways, and the city dweller, as well not accustomed to carrying things about, is apt in the street car to keep his bags and bundles by him and to watch them closely, but there are many, accustomed in the other way, who can leave things to the platform without seeming to worry over them unduly.

HEAVY BUSINESS IN NOVEMBER

From the Philadelphia Ledger.

December's business was the largest for any month in the largest year the New York custom house ever experienced. It contributed almost $20,000,000 to the annual total of $299,908,355. This was more than the entire United States customs revenue in 1899. To this it is necessary to add $86,226,055 contributed to the nation's banking resources by imports of gold at this port. The subtreasury handled just short of $3,000,000,000 about equally divided between debits and credits, the increase upon both sides being more than $1,000,000,000 over 1905. National bank loans, exceeding a round billion of the minimum, were about one-fourth of all national bank loans for the nation. The maximum monthly clearings in New York in January were almost equal to the minimum clearings for the entire country in July, or $11,369,986,622. On the stock exchange 268,000,000 shares were sold, a maximum for New York, and, of course, there is no other market for a comparison.

BRIDE KISSES FOUR HUNDRED

From St. Louis Post-Dispatch to the New York World.

Immediately after Miss Lodia Nieman, of 1415 North Fourteenth street, became the bride of Jacob Glaser, last night, she had to give away 400 kisses. The ceremony took place in Druid's hall, and was according to the old Jewish custom.

As soon as the minister had finished saying the words which married the two young persons, the 400 guests swarmed toward the altar. The newly-made husband barely had time to take the first kiss before his bride was being saluted osculatorially by another young man. Young and old, little and big, everybody got his or her kiss. When the exercise was through the bride was nearly exhausted, but beamingly declared that if there was any person who had not received his due, she stood ready to see that the omission was corrected.

Both bride and groom fasted for 24 hours preceding the wedding.

To celebrate the breaking of their fast they drank of the nuptial wine, a wedding present—and dashed the glasses to the floor, where they were broken into a thousand pieces.

SOME QUEER SCHOOLS.

For Policemen, Nursemaids, Grave Diggers, Judges and Croupiers.

From the Boston Transcript.

There are some very strange educational establishments open at the present day. A school for cash boys was opened some time ago.

According to a prospectus, pupils, who must not be under 14 years of age, are taught arithmetic, penmanship, and the quick handling and counting of money. Many of the boys who have attended the school are now earning good wages as cashiers in some of the largest stores in New York and Chicago.

It is proposed to open in London a school for nursemaids, where girls over 16 years of age may be given lessons on the management of infants, preparing of children's food, plain sewing, and laundry work, and the kindergarten system of education.

Such an institution already exists in Berlin. It was founded two years ago by a clergyman, and is in connection with a foundling hospital. The growing girls of this establishment are taught to become competent housemaids, and positions are found for them in the houses of the best families in Germany.

Russia possesses a school for policemen, where young men are trained for the force. The school is situated in St. Petersburg, and in a museum connected thereto the pupils make themselves familiar with jimmies, drills, chisels, and other tools used by professional thieves. A particular branch of the school is the Russian passport system, which every budding policeman has to study in detail.

A remarkable educational establishment is the school for judges opened recently in Paris. Here make-believe trials are held by pupils under the supervision of well-known attorneys. The whole procedure from the issuing of a warrant for arrest to the summing up and the judge's verdict is carried through in a businesslike manner.

At Monte Carlo there is a school of croupiers. It is held during the six summer months in the clubroom of the Tir aux Pigeons and the Salle d'Escrime in the Casino building.

Here are tables similar to those in the Casino gaming room and each pupil in turn takes the role of croupier, while others personate players and stake money over a table. At a given instant the croupier must be ready to calculate and pay out the winning stakes.

There are usually between 40 and 50 pupils in this school, and a six months' course is generally sufficient to turn them into finished croupiers.

A very old educational establishment is the school for grave diggers in Belgium. It was founded by the directors of the Great Evere cemetery, and all candidates for posts as sextons in Belgium must undergo training in the school and pass an examination.

There are several schools of housewifery in England, the principal of which is connected with the National Training School of Cookery in London. Every branch of household management is taught at this school, the keeping of accounts, the principles of domestic sanitation, and a certain amount of sick training being included.

FIRST AMERICAN PRINCESS.

From the Boston Transcript.

Apropos of the honors now being paid to the memory of Pocahontas, it may be fairly enough questioned if Anglo-Saxons have not "progressed backwards" in their treatment of Indians since her day. In England King James decreed that she should be considered a princess, daughter of a sovereign, with whom he desired to live in amity. Accordingly his guests had orders to pay all honors to Pocahontas as a member of the sovereign cast, and King James entertained considerable doubts as to sanctioning her marriage with Rolfe on the ground that the latter had "presumed" to contract an alliance with royalty, but finally concluded to give the happy couple his blessing. Blessings cost nothing, which explains why King James was always so willing to give them. Pocahontas was a sweet flower of the wilderness that faded early. Her blood flows in the veins of many of the first families of Virginia, and perhaps the best known of all her descendants was John Randolph of Roanoke who was on the warpath all his life.

TRADES FOR SOLDIERS.

From the Court Journal.

The scheme for teaching the soldier a trade, which is to be put into operation, is eminently practical, and if carried out thoroughly it will go a long way toward solving the problem of employment for ex-soldiers.

A circular letter has been sent to commanding officers drawing their attention to what can be done to provide soldiers with technical training during their army service, and the carrying out of the instructions therein should be strictly insisted upon. A very practical list of trades is submitted, and officers are instructed to study the question of what trades are the most advantageously taught in their command, and then to make every effort to induce men to interest themselves in their future prospects. All the trades enumerated would prove of the greatest utility to the men, and would, if they be duly made proficient during his service with the colors.

TERRIBLE FAMILY AFFLICTION

From the Atchison Globe.

"An Atchison man and his wife sat down last night and talked it over. 'We have been living fast for six weeks,' he said, 'and dread of doing what lies before us is not making it any easier. We have it to do, let us begin now.' His wife agreed with him and departed sadly for the cellar. When she returned she carried a jar of preserved fruit. They had decided to begin to eat their way through 187 quarts of peaches, 47 quarts of strawberries, 36 quarts of cherries and 43 quarts of plums put up last summer.

CARRIE NATION certainly smashed a hole in the barrooms of Kansas. But Bullard's Horehound Syrup has smashed all records as a cure for Coughs, Bronchitis, Influenza and all Pulmonary diseases. L. E. H., Horton, Kansas, writes: "I have never found a medicine that would cure a cough so quickly as Bullard's Horehound Syrup. I have used it for years." Sold by the Hickey-Arcularius Drug Co.
